

A close-up photograph of a dark, textured metal casting. The casting has a complex, angular shape with a prominent circular threaded hole on its side. The surface is rough and granular, characteristic of a sand-cast part. The lighting highlights the texture and the metallic sheen of the hole's interior.

